MULTI-CULTURAL GREEK COUNCIL

EST. 2002

ABOUT MGC

The Multicultural Greek Council was established at the University of Washington in 2002 and was formerly known as the United Greek Council. The organization aims to unite historically underrepresented cultural Greek organizations through building community relations, increasing cultural awareness, and promoting academic success among our members. As an umbrella organization, MGC currently represents 11 Greek organizations, but continues to grow.

COMMUNITY

MGC strives to promote a message of unity throughout our campus while celebrating and promoting the cultural diversity of our community.

CULTURE

Our council aims to provide the support and resources that each organization needs in order to spread more cultural awareness on campus, while embracing our own individuality.

ACADEMICS

Our Multicultural Greek Council members are dedicated to creating an environment that fosters the support and resources that can help members build connections, network, and communicate during their time at the University of Washington and beyond.

RECRUITMENT

Recruitment is a period in which a prospective member is able to learn and about the chapters they may be interested in joining. This is generally done by attending rush events, meeting and socializing with active members, learning about and getting a feel of the culture of the house, and ultimately determining whether the environment is a right fit. Each organization has their unique purpose, morals, and philanthropies, and have attracted students with diverse backgrounds, majors, and interests. We recommend that students interested in joining an organization do their research by checking out an organization's respective website or social media.
